

Symphony 10: Maximum comfort in Pininfarina Look

New premium cabin from LEITNER ropeways premièred in Val Gardena

After the 3S “Symphony” cabin, LEITNER ropeways now presents its “little sister”: The Symphony 10 offers excellent performance in terms of space, comfort and experience. Complementing the Diamond model, it creates an attractive premium offering in the 10-passenger gondola segment. The new cabin was premièred in the “Piz Seteur” 10-passenger gondola lift in Val Gardena.

What is new in the Symphony 10 is primarily the design, which offers guests more convenience from when they enter the gondola until they leave it. The first comfort boost is the much wider entryway compared with the Diamond Series 10-passenger gondola. The sliding doors also ensure that passengers near the doors are no longer bothered by the mechanism when opening. The panorama windows that extend all the way to the roof offer the best possible all-round view, giving a particularly open ride experience.

More space: Breathe deeply and enjoy!

While the somewhat restrictive feeling in gondolas has long been a thing of the past, the Symphony 10 sets new standards as a premium model. LEITNER ropeways made the seats even wider and increased the spacing between the individual seats, enhancing individual comfort. The new gondola design makes this added space possible: It is wider at the top, making it more spacious and creating additional personal space. Redesigning the vertical support structures facilitated optimal positioning of the interior fittings like benches and hand grips. The flatter support structures allow LED strips to be used for lighting the gondola’s contours. Maximizing comfort inside, unrivaled design outside: The main frame and external profile are based on the Pininfarina design of the Symphony gondola, which still marks a real quantum leap in quality and design standards on the ropeway market. In keeping with the design, the premium cabin features automotive-style seats in genuine leather.

Première at one of the hotspots in the Alps

Passengers in the new Piz Seteur 10-passenger gondola lift in Val Gardena will be the first to experience the new Symphony 10 gondola. That is where the new top product LEITNER ropeways will be premiered in the upcoming winter season. There, 77 cabins in an elegant black and blue look will transport 3,450 passengers per hour to the start of the famous Sella Ronda ski circuit. In addition to this innovation, the project at Piz de Sella S.p.A. also boasts another first for Italy: The midway station is the first new Pininfarina station nationwide. The entrance area in the valley station will be another special feature. Here, LEITNER ropeways developed a tailored solution for the customer, to make access to the gondolas even more stress-free: Six gondolas pass through the station with their doors open for 65 seconds, leaving enough time and space for convenient boarding. Igor Marzola, owner of the Piz Sella ski resort, is pleased with the “tailored overall solution”: “We are delighted to have found a partner in LEITNER who meets our needs with high-grade technical solutions in all areas.”
